SUSPICION THAT SOME RATE CUT-TING IS STILL INDULGED IN.

The Vanderbilts and the Wabash Lines-The Southern Railway Negotiating for the L., E. & St. L.

Although in a general way the eastbound rate situation has improved, suspicions and allegations of rate cutting have not vanished. The late official weekly report of east-bound tonnage excites considerable comment. The Grand Trunk is shown to have carried far more grain than any of the other trunk lines. This fact has an especial interest for the railroad men because it was generally believed that | eral Superintendent Miller was on the the Vanderbilt lines had contracts with several of the heaviest grain shippers. In one week the Grand Trunk hauled more than 30,300 tons of grain from Chicago to the seaboard, while the Michigan Central, Vanderbilt line, hauled about 25,400 tons. There is no attempt on the part of the trunk line freight traffic men to deny that each railroad is seeking business in its own way, and whenever the freight agent of one road discovers that another road is making contracts at a cut rate he proceeds to meet the lowest figure quoted in order to keep his own share of the business.

Goulds May Lose the Wabash. The Wabash lines earned in the first week of April $310,350, an increase over the corresponding week of 1899 of $65,563. Some suggestions have been made that when the Wabash cut-off is completed and that road obtains the shortest line between Chicago and Toledo the Vanderbilts may fact that the Wabash is owned by the at 4 o'clock, aged seventy-eight. The passenger earnings of the Lake Shore and New York Central are, says one of the officials, making rapid strides. In the six months ending Jan. 1 the revenue of these roads from passenger business was larger than in 1893, when the world's fair travel added to their business, and since Jan. 1 the passenger business of these lines has shown remarkable gains.

The Big Four is building 200 fifty-feet furniture cars in its Brightwood shops. It is claimed by the Big Four management that there is an increasing demand for fifty-feet cars, a majority of the Western roads adopting this class in their recent orders.
